NEW GOLD CLEW IN TREASURE HUNT

Thousands Join in To-day's Search—Re-read This Instalment and the Tip Will Stand You in Good Stead.

By "The Money Man."

Thousands of men and women and boys and girls joined in the AMERICAN gold hunt this afternoon immediately after the first Key Edition of the AMERICAN was issued shortly after 12 o'clock. One of the most promising clews led to the Common, apparently, and that famous breathing spot of the city was soon overrun with eager searchers.

I have no hesitation in pronouncing the clews good in the former editions. But as I promised to make them easier, I will ask you to re-read the instalment of "Hidden—Not Lost" in this issue of the paper. If you fail to run down the clews after these additional hints, they will be made plainer still in the first Key Edition of the AMERICAN out to-morrow shortly after the noon hour.

There will also be a number of ADDITIONAL GOOD CLEWS to-morrow.

The key to the strong box with $1,000 in gold in it has not been found yet. There was a clew to it yesterday. Look also for the two lots worth $750 and $650, the $250 motor cycle, a $50 gold watch and hundreds of dollars in gold. Some of this treasure is being found every day.

TO WOMEN READERS—Are you reading the story and preparing to solve the mystery of the heroine and suggest the best ending to the story? Many women readers have already been heard from. The first best in the contest gets an $850 Henry F. Miller player piano. The next two get gold watches.

Persevere!

Many a fish is just biting—not caught.
Some politicians are waiting—not bought.
Many the rivers we're crossing—not crossed.
Many the treasures just "hidden—not lost."

Fish that keep biting will sometime be caught.
"Pols" who are willing will sometime be bought.
Few are the rivers that cannot be crossed.
SEARCH, then, for treasure just "HIDDEN—NOT LOST."

OPEN WAR ON GAMBLING

Two Men Arrested on Charge of Receiving and Registering a Bet. Officials Say Beginning of Crusade.

Charged with registering a bet on a horse race, and being custodian of that bet, Frank J. Meehan of No. 564 Columbus avenue and W. Howard Hartwell of No. 557 Massachusetts avenue were arrested in the Washington street hotel district to-day.

Meehan is charged with registering and Hartwell with being custodian of the bet, which was on a horse race out of town yesterday.

The complainant is the Watch and Ward Society, which says that these arrests are the first in a campaign which is to be made against betting on ball games, horse races and so on.

This marks the first active step of the authorities in a crusade begun against ball game and race track gambling, which has been flourishing in the hotel section with flagrant openness.

The men were taken on the street by Inspectors Glenvey and Dolan. They were marched to headquarters and then Inspector "Jack" Burr was detailed to go back to the scene of the arrest, presumably to look for other men.

Other Arrests Expected.

It is known that several more parties are under suspicion. Agent Dolan of the Watch and Ward Society, the complainant in the cases of Meehan and Hartwell, says that at least fifteen more are suspected of gambling and that other arrests may follow.

The bet, which is alleged to have been recorded and held by Hartwell and Meehan, is said to have concerned a horse race that took place yesterday, presumably on the New York entries.

Hartwell was arraigned soon after he arrived at headquarters and was held in $1,000 bail for a continued hearing Thursday.

Meehan was bailed out and will not come into court till to-morrow.

AMERICAN LEAGUE BASEBALL GROUNDS, NEW YORK, June 30.—Old Hilderbolt's Yanks were not so frisky when they took the field against the Red Sox as they were yesterday. The visitors beat the locals to a standstill in eleven innings and in the twenty-four hours the body had to think it over they came to the conclusion that the Red Sox were about as husky a team as has been up at this park this season.

The change in management has, however, livened up the Yanks. Elberfeld is just as much of a hustler as Griffith, and as the former has everything to gain and nothing to lose, he is making the effort of his life to pull the New Yorks out of the seventh hole.

It was expected that Uncle Cy Young and "Happy Jack" Chesbro, the veteran twirlers, would be opposed to each other this afternoon and a good-sized crowd of fans journeyed up to the grounds to see the fun. The weather was warm and pleasant.

McGuire and his men haven't fully recovered from the shock of losing that 7 to 6 game of Saturday when the locals won out in the last two innings, overcoming a lead of four runs. The defeat made them fighting mad, and yesterday they played for all they were worth to make up for lost ground, and they succeeded.

The Red Sox and Yanks will play again to-morrow, it being the last appearance of the Boston team here this season. On Thursday McGuire's men open in Philadelphia for a series of four games, including two contests of July 4.

MYSTERY IN HEADLESS BODY FOUND ON TRACK

MUTILATED BY TRAIN, MAY HAVE BEEN A VICTIM OF FOUL PLAY.

Medical Examiner Thomas M. Durell of Somerville, in his report after examining the headless and legless body of the unidentified man which was found to-day on the Boston & Maine railroad tracks in Everett, contributes to the mystery which surrounds the case.

The medical examiner, in describing conditions, says that the head and legs severed from the body, and that the body from which arms and legs had all out been severed, was badly mangled. He does not state how the body came to be on the tracks, whether the man had gone there to commit suicide or had been drugged and dragged there.

The police are continuing their investigation with redoubled zeal, with the hope of finding some clew to throw some light on the strange happening. Dr. Durell could find nothing with which to lead to an investigation.

About 35 Years of Age.

Patrolman Jesse Killion found the dismembered body early to-day. It was seemingly that of a man between forty years of age, and weighed about 155 pounds and was five feet seven and eight inches in height. The man was born a dark mixed skin. He was of dark complexion and wore a mousta[illegible] the body was found lying across the tracks of the Eastern Division of the B. & Maine.

It had been placed so that the wheels would cut off the head and the feet. After the man was a suicide or had been robbed, drugged and then dragged to the tracks to avoid evidences of murder, the police of Everett are at a loss to determine.

The body was found about 200 feet from the Everett station and was in the shadow of the bridge at that place. The police thought that the man might have been dead for hours and that many trains might have passed over the body. The remains were taken to Henderson's undertaking place.

Boston Police Informed.

Investigation by the police hourly added to the mystery. The very fact that the unidentified man had been unusually well dressed, and from what little could be told from the face, hands and body, the body was refined and of a good station in life, leads the police to think that such a man would not have chosen such a way to die.

As soon as Policeman Killion had found the body he at once sent in a statement of the facts to police headquarters, and the whole force of Everett was soon busied in trying to find if any Everett citizen was missing. The police have been unable to find that any Everett man is not accounted for to-day.

The police of Boston and other nearby cities were informed of the finding of the body.

TOO WET FOR DOVES TO PLAY THE QUAKERS

The rain butted in to-day and spoiled the third game between the Doves and the Phillies just as the teams were getting ready to go on the field and the manager ment called the contest off and decided on a double header to-morrow.

The players were just as well satisfied as the weather was too grueling for even them and they preferred to take a chance with eighteen innings to-morrow.

DEMURRER FILED IN DILLAWAY SUIT

Sherman L. Whipple, counsel for the American Pneumatic Service Company, filed a demurrer in the Supreme Court today before Judge Rugg in the suit brought by W. E. L. Dillaway, former president of the company, who asserts that the company has made an illegal and unwarranted issue of $441,000 of 5 per cent. bonds.

PROSTRATED BY HEAT, YOUTH IN HOSPITAL

The heat to-day, made all but unendurable to man and beast by reason of excessive humidity, resulted in the prostration of Eugene Barnes, twenty-two years of age, who collapsed at Cott and Tremont streets and was taken to the Relief Hospital.

Starting at 68 degrees at 8 o'clock this morning the mercury climbed steadily up till 80 degrees were registered at noon. Then the temperature slowly fell to 84 at 2 o'clock this afternoon, when a heavy rain and electrical storm passed over the city.

During the rainfall the temperature fell ten degrees and afterward climbed up to 83, one degree less than before the rain.

The storm served to clear the air and the rain lowered the humidity considerably. For all of that the weather forecaster promised no relief for the rest of the day so far as the heat is concerned.

THREE MONTHS FOR THEFT FROM CHURCH

Henry Keenan was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction at Deer Island by Judge Fallon in the South Boston District Court to-day for stealing candlesticks from the Church of the Holy Rosary. He appealed, and was held in $200 for a higher court.

ANDERSON BEAT THORP IN CLOSE MATCH

In the semi-finals in the open golf tournament at the Oakley Country Club, Watertown, to-day, the most exciting match was between John G. Anderson, former State champion, and J. G. Thorp of the Oakley Club, the two having to go the full eighteen holes in deciding the victor. Anderson winning by 1 up, his score being 76 to 77 for Thorp.

A. M. Reed of Albany defeated G. M. Brooks of Winchester by 2 up and 1 to play. This afternoon Anderson meets Reed in the final, and though the former is a strong favorite, yet he is very liable to find trouble in Reed, as the latter covered the return course this forenoon in 35, fast enough to make the best travel.

CLUB WOMEN AT MRS. WINN'S FUNERAL

Attended by several hundred club women from all sections of the country and scores of friends from Malden, the funeral services of Mrs. Eva Winn, the Malden club woman who was killed in the tally-ho accident at Newport Friday, were held at her late home, No. 264 Summer street, this afternoon. Mrs. Winn was the wife of Ex-Mayor Henry Winn of Malden. Rev. H. R. French of the Congregational Church officiated at the services, which were of a simple, but touching nature.

WOMEN TRY TO CHANGE SEATS; TWO DROWNED

Two colored women who have as yet been unidentified, were drowned this afternoon from a canoe in the Cohicho river, about 100 yards above the pumping station of the Newton Water Works.

The drowning was witnessed by several young men on the shore. The young men made several attempts to rescue the drowning women but failed.

The beard the cries of the women and saw them struggling in the water. The upturned canoe told the story. The men on the shore tore off their clothing and swam out to the women, but by the time they had got to the spot the victims had sunk.

The canoe was overturned when the two women tried to change seats in the frail craft, it is supposed. The Newton police later found the bodies and took them to the morgue of the Newton hospital.

BOY DIVES INTO POND TO ESCAPE THE HEAT AND DROWNS

WORCESTER, June 30.—Trying to escape the sweltering heat of the day, Walter Olson, nineteen years of age, of No. 61 Manson avenue, this city, and a junior in the English High School, dived into ten feet of water in Indian Lake to-day within sight of his home and was drowned.

Cowan didn't know how to swim, and for that reason would never have dived into the water at that spot had he known how deep it was. He sank and rose, and sank again, crying for help.

Oscar Olson, his cousin, who was with him at the time, pluckily jumped in after the drowning youth, but was unequal to the feat of rescuing him, and Cowan sank and failed to rise. Olson gave the alarm, and the Worcester police soon after dragged the lake and recovered the body.

ORGANIZED LABOR OUT TO DEFEAT ITS ENEMIES

FANEUIL HALL PROTEST MEETING DECLARES IT'S TIME TO GET BUSY IN POLITICS.

Organized labor in Massachusetts is going out into the elections this Fall to defeat its enemies and elect its friends.

Meeting this afternoon in Faneuil Hall, the Massachusetts State Branch, American Federation of Labor, through approximately 100 delegates, accepted the report of the Federation's legislative committee to Beacon Hill, on recent recess committee damning of labor bills, and unanimously adopted these resolutions:

"Your Legislative Committee believe that the time is opportune to urge upon every wage earner of Massachusetts, organized and unorganized, the necessity of our fellow workers taking the initiative and such necessary action as will carry the unanimous expression of organized labor into effect.

"We recommend that such action be taken at this meeting as will serve to awaken the workers of the Commonwealth to their sense of duty, by defeating their enemies and electing their friends.

"We believe it is the duty of laboring men to question candidates for office as to their attitude toward Labor legislation.

"We once more urge upon you to stand by party, and to oppose and defeat our enemies, whether they be candidates for Presidency, for Congress or for State offices, whether legislative, executive or judicial.

"Respectfully submitted.

"JAMES R. CROZIER,
Acting Chairman.
"THOMAS M. NOLAN,
Secretary.
"EDMOND F. WARD,
"JOHN C. HICKEY."

Discuss Mode of Action.

Having adopted the resolutions without a dissenting voice, the convention set itself to devise the modus operandi by which the determination to "defeat enemies and elect friends" might be carried out. To call for the meeting had specifically made this declaration:

"No political party or platform will be tolerated at this meeting."

"That means 'platform,'" said Secretary Nolan of the Legislative Committee. "It has nothing to do with getting at some plan of action."

E. Gerry Brown of Brockton suggested a committee, to recommend some plan. The suggestion seemed to find favor.

Philip H. Sweet of Boston, per diem of the State Branch, was in the chair. Martin T. Joyce served as secretary. Among the delegates were Senator Frank A. Lindsay and Representative William O'Brien of Ward 16.

Three Senators Denounced.

State Senators Charles D. B. Fisk of Brighton, William O. Faxon of Stoughton and Elmer C. Potter of Worcester, all Republicans, were called by name in the report of the Legislative Committee and denounced as "African dodgers" and "high and lofty tumblers" for their somersault on the peaceful picketing bill.

The report of the Legislative Committee set forth that Fisk, Faxon and Potter, as members of the "Recess Committee," which held thirty-five public hearings on labor bills and which heard, among others, President Samuel Gompers, had all three signed the report recommending the peaceful picketing bill and had then voted against the bill in the Senate.

BISHOP POTTER DYING; CANNOT SURVIVE DAY

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., June 30.—At 8 o'clock a. m. a bulletin was issued from the bedside of Bishop Henry Codman Potter, stating that the distinguished patient rested easily last night, but that his condition is so critical that he cannot survive the day.

All of the relatives have been summoned to his bedside.

The bishop has only brief intervals of consciousness.

Bishop Potter's son, Alonzo Potter, arrived here last night and has been almost constantly with his father. Mrs. Elizabeth Clark Potter, the bishop's second wife, has been with her husband almost continually since yesterday when his condition became alarming.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

Frank Myers, twenty-seven, and giving his address as New York, to-day pleaded not guilty to a charge of pocket picking preferred against him in the Roxbury Municipal Court by George F. Dyer of No. 61 Ashmont street, Dorchester. He was held for a hearing on July 7, and not being able to furnish the $700 bail went to the Charles street jail.

BOGUS NAVAL OFFICER HELD BY HUB POLICE

Walter C. Lawrence Will Be Turned Over to the Federal Authorities.

HAS SERVED AT CONCORD

For the second time in his checkered career, Walter C. Lawrence, bogus naval officer, has been apprehended by the police through a birth mark under his left eye, and though he notified the headquarters officials to-day that he was not the notorious Lieutenant Capehearf who swindled many wealthy New Englanders while posing as a naval officer, he will be turned over to the Federal officers who may proceed against him for using the mails in a fraudulent scheme.

Lawrence, who is also known under the name of Monroe, in the fulfillment of his questionable schemes, solicits servant girls and women in moderate circumstances for his victims. Garbed in the uniform of a United States naval officer and with a polished manner and discreet suggestion, he has had no difficulty in convincing the most skeptical that he was one of Uncle Sam's naval heroes.

Resembles Lieutenant Capeheart.

His resemblance to the notorious Lieutenant Capehearf resulted in his arrest last evening by Patrolman Miner of the City Hall avenue station. Protesting that he was the victim of an outrage, Lawrence was taken by the officer to the station house, where he stoutly maintained that he was a naval officer stationed at Fortress Monroe.

His pockets were stuffed full of letters from young women in various parts of New England, however, and under cross-examination he admitted his identity. He was sentenced to the Concord Reformatory for a three years' term in 1905 as a common and notorious cheat.

Pockets Full of Letters.

At that time he was arrested after inserting advertisements in the paper stating that he ran a Summer hotel out of town and desired to hire a number of chamber maids, waitresses and other female employes. The unsuspecting who answered met the schemer at the South station, where after getting money from them to purchase their tickets, he disappeared. All of the victims, in describing the man to the police, told of the birth mark under the left eye.

The letters found on his clothing last evening are from women applying for positions.

BRYAN FACES REVOLT ON INJUNCTION PLANK

FORCES OPPOSING HIS IDEA ARE ALREADY LINING UP IN DENVER.

DENVER, Colo., June 30.—William J. Bryan now faces a revolt over the anti-injunction plank in the Democratic platform. The insurrectionists are Roger C. Sullivan of Illinois, Colonel R. M. Johnson of Texas, "Tom" Taggart and Secretary Urey Woodson. They expect reinforcements in the persons of John T. McGraw of West Virginia to-day and Clark Howell of Georgia, late in the week. That the Bryan anti-injunction plank is said to be as follows:

"We favor such a modification of the laws relating to injunctions as will, first, prevent the issuing of the writ in industrial disputes, except after notice to defendants and full hearing; second, permit trial of such by a judge other than the one who issued the writ and, third, allows a jury to be summoned in all cases where the alleged contempt is committed outside the presence of the court."

Sullivan Will Lead the Fight.

National Committeeman Sullivan announced to-day that he would lead the fight, if necessary, against any attempt on the part of the friends of Mr. Bryan to insert the Nebraska anti-injunction plank into the Denver platform.

"I yield to no man in my allegiance to the Democratic party," he said. "Democracy, according to my light, is a consistent government, administering justice impartially on the theory of equal rights to all and special privileges to none.

"Under the federal constitution this principle finds guarantee in the rights of the sovereign states, which is, in substance, the principle of home rule.

"A democrat asks concerning measures only one question: Are they right? He sets aside, as secondary, the consideration of how many votes these measures will bring the candidates of the party. Democracy stands for honesty as against expediency, and for loyalty to principle as against chasing the fads and fancies of the hour."

"Opposes Class Hatred."

"A Democrat opposes the creation of class hatred. He opposes the distribution of race or wealth are to be expected from political organizations out of harmony with the American constitution."

Chairman Taggart, of the National committee, announced positively to-night that he would not be a candidate for re-election. He said he is doing all he can to nominate John W. Kern of Indiana, for vice-president.

There are so many vice-presidential candidates that there will not be enough quarters to accommodate them all. Others broke out to-day. Two real booms reached Denver and a real scrimmage is looked for for second place on the ticket. Archbald McNeil, the millionaire of Connecticut, is the real new arrival in this field. Senator Lind Wilson of his home State is in Denver as the insurance guard. Alexander Troup is to come later to add strength to the "All New England is with McNeil," was Senator White's declaration. "The other States are for Mr. Bryan. We believe he would find a strong running mate in Mr. McNeil, and we look for support from other places. His late interest in politics is one which is to start, and that looks pretty good. The delegation arrives on July 6, and Mr. Troup will precede it one day.

Towne Boom Will Not Down.

The next boom to appear was that of Governor Chandler Towne, of Minn. It is claimed for him that he is very strong in the West and would make a strong mate for the head of the ticket.

An attempt is to be made to get a dry plank into the platform. General J. B. Weaver of Iowa, who once ran for President on the People's ticket, is to take it to Denver.

He claims a big following in the South in his movement.

The boom of Charles A. Towne of Minnesota for Vice-President was still not down. J. P. Miller, editor of the Baltimore Sun and a lifelong friend of the orator from New York, who is on the ground and has notified Secretary Taggart of the agreement Towne, told this story to-day:

"Three weeks ago I had a conference with Mr. Towne in Washington, at which we talked over the possibility of his being a candidate for the chief place on the Democratic ticket, and Mr. Towne said: 'I am not to me that he could not for a moment consider such a thing because of his friendship for Mr. Bryan.'

"We then turned to the Vice-Presidency, and Mr. Towne told me in such a positive way that we would not consider that office as to leave no doubt of his sincerity.

"Ten days ago Mr. Towne was called west by a gentleman from Bryan's town, and he went direct to Lincoln, where he spent some hours with Bryan. He called upon me later at a Chicago hotel and told me confidentially that he had practically declined to enter the race for the Vice-Presidential nomination."

APPOINTMENTS ARE ANNOUNCED BY GOV. GUILD

Those of Miss Rockwell and Miss Bamber as Industrial Trustees Among Them.

REWARD CHARITY WORK

Governor Guild to-day read to the Executive Council his appointments to membership in the Mount Everett Reservation Commission and the Board of Trustees of the Industrial School for Boys. The appointment of Misses Maude Rockwell of Milton and Roberts street, Roxbury, and Miss Goldie Bamber of No. 6 Marshall terrace, Brookline, as trustees of the industrial School created the most favorable comment. The appointments of the Governor are as follows:

Members of the Mount Everett Reservation Commission—Henry C. Joyce of Great Barrington, six years' term; Charley Collins of Great Barrington, four years, and Henry M. White of Lee, two years.

Members of the Board of Trustees of the Industrial School for Boys—William S. Kyle of Plymouth, five years' term; Miss Goldie Bamber of Brookline, four years; Matthew Luce of Cohasset, six years; Miss Maude M. Rockwell of Roxbury, three years; James J. Sheehan of Peabody, three years; John A. Hogan of Roxbury, two years, and Charles M. Davenport of Boston, two years.

The appointment of Miss Rockwell as a trustee of the Industrial Training School for Boys is regarded as the most fitting recognition of years of self-chosen labor for the bettering and uplifting of the more unfortunate classes. Miss Rockwell, who is a daughter of the late Colonel Herbert T. Rockwell, is the vice-president of the Guild of St. Elizabeth and an efficient member of the Lodging House Commission. She is well known as an energetic and untiring settlement worker.

Miss Bamber, who has been the superintendent of the Hebrew Industrial School, has taken an equally important and effective part in social settlement work as her associate appointee, Miss Rockwell.

AIRSHIP BAG BREAKS, INVENTORS UNDAUNTED

REPAIR "PEACEMAKER" FOR ASCENSION ON THURSDAY—BENEFIT TO-MORROW.

Undismayed by the third serious mishap to the airship "Peacemaker," in the course of its construction at the Huntington avenue baseball grounds, Edward MacGregor and Loveland M. Francis, the inventors and builders, with indomitable pluck, are to-day repairing the damage done their craft yesterday afternoon when two huge gas bags burst in the air bag. They expect to complete repairs to-day and will be ready for an ascension sometime Thursday.

In the meantime, out of funds, without even enough food to sustain life, MacGregor and Francis, who do not know the meaning of the word failure, propose to give an exhibition for which they will charge the nominal sum of ten cents.

The exhibition will be a demonstration of the mechanical workings of the engines, propellers, steering gear and other mechanical devices of the great airship. The Huntington avenue grounds are to open to-morrow to the public from 10 in the morning until 8 at night, and only 10 cents admission is to be charged.

Working for Months.

Since last April Messrs. MacGregor and Francis have been at work building and perfecting their great craft which they are confident will revolutionize aerial navigation and demonstrate that it is entirely practical.

About a month and a half ago, all things being ready, as was thought, for an ascension and trial voyage, Messrs. MacGregor and Francis began the inflation of the huge gas bag. This had not proceeded for until it was seen that it was too potous to hold the gas.

Then a triple coat of varnish was necessary, and hardly had this been applied until the American League baseball club returned to the grounds and the inventors were compelled to submit to a long, disconcerting delay. The big bag was removed to the home of Mr. Francis in Rollins street, and this, too, was the cause of additional damage and attending expense.

From the Rollins street house the airship was taken to a hall in the Waverley House, Charlestown, and the engines were perfected and the framework for the airship was built. Here, too, the most complete tests were made of the engines, steering gear and other working parts.

Hauled back again to the ball grounds, another mishap was experienced when rain fell upon a hundred coat of varnish on the gas bag, putting the plucky inventors to still another great expense.

Yesterday afternoon MacGregor and Francis proposed to make an ascension and try out their air craft. They knew that they were laboring at a great disadvantage, however, as a shed on which the gas bag could be inflated. They devised the expedient of throwing ropes across the slowly inflating balloon and weighting them down. Everything was proceeding smoothly and the bag was about three-quarters filled when a tremendous gust of wind swirled over the high fence surrounding the ground, partially filled bag and carried the gas from end of the bag to the other with such force that two huge rents, twenty feet long each, were torn in the canvas.

Repairing the Damage.

To-day MacGregor, Francis and several assistants are working night and main to repair the damage, and the exhibition to-morrow is to enable the men who don't know how to fall to make a sum of money which will tide them over their present difficulties.

MacGregor, who has a wife and baby, gave up a fine place with the Boston Elevated Railroad Company to perfect what he believed to be the only practical airship ever invented. In the brain of another, Mr. MacGregor said that last night he was more sorely tempted than ever to give up the fight.

"It isn't as though I were alone," said Mr. MacGregor, "but I have a wife and child dependent upon me. Last night the poor little girl sat beside the car of my airship and cried as though her heart would break. She begged me to give it up and in turn I begged her to hold out a little longer. I have the courage to refuse her. I must succeed now or never."

SOLDIERS ARE HOME AFTER PLAY AT WAR

The Coast Artillery and the Ninth Regiment returned to Boston to-day, after ten days of duty in harbor forts, during which they took part in mimic skirmishes and battles and had some practical experience in handling the big cannon Uncle Sam has mounted to beat off any foreign foe.

The men, nearly 2,000 in number, looked tanned and hardy after camp duty. They were highly complimented by regular army officers who watched their work. The latter said the Massachusetts militiamen had made a great showing and demonstrated that they are first-class reserves to draw upon in case of war. The Ninth Regiment, under command of Colonel William H. Donovan, came from Fort Heath by train to East Boston, where they crossed the inner harbor on special ferryboats. They marched past the BOSTON AMERICAN office on their parade to the armory, on East Newton street.

Practically the same route was taken by the Coast Artillery, which has an armory on Irvington street. The artillery was under the command of Colonel Charles P. Nutter. This regiment broke camp at Fort Banks this morning. The Massachusetts soldiery were cheered by street crowds as they marched like veterans to the armories.

Captain Kephart, U. S. A., is one of the regulars who watched the work of the Bay State troops. He said: "This has been the most successful hour of duty by militia I ever saw. The officers and men did themselves credit. They had ten days of experience, which is bound to be of advantage."

NEW POLICE RECRUIT MAKES BIG CAPTURE

Patrolman O'Brien of the Hanover street station, a new recruit, distinguished himself last night in capturing a man against whom the police expect to fix several charges of breaking and entering. When taken to the station house the man said that his name was James Howard of No. 126 North street.

While O'Brien was patrolling his beat on Causeway st he heard cries of "Murder! Police!" issuing from No. 201. He ran up three flights of stairs and into a dark room, where he saw two forms struggling.

He grappled with both men and held them. One of the men, named Antonio Cirullo, said that he had been set upon and robbed by Howard. After a struggle Howard was taken to the station.

At police headquarters he was identified by Thomas Black, a Peddler, who in 1903 was found guilty of larceny. Several midnight breaks have been reported to the police lately, and they think that Black may know something about them.

JAILED ON GIRL'S CHARGE, DOCTOR IS ILL

Humiliation at being taken from his home and jailed as prisoner behind the bars has proved too much of a strain on the nerves of Dr. Edward R. Cahill, the North Cambridge physician, and he has suffered a breakdown. He is being cared for in his cell by Dr. Edgar Utley, his family physician. Dr. Utley said to-day:

"Dr. Cahill is suffering from a severe nervous breakdown. It is the first time in his life that he was ever behind prison bars. His highly nervous temperament could not undergo the shock. I feel sure that he will be as well as ever in a few days."

A hurried call was sent out late last night for Dr. Utley to come to the East Cambridge jail. The police refused to say what was the cause of the sudden nervous night call.

It was rumored that Dr. Cahill was ill, but nothing could be learned as to the seriousness of his illness. The mystery was cleared up to-day by Dr. Utley's statement.

Dr. Cahill remains a prisoner until his wife and friends can secure bondsmen to the amount of $5,000. He is accused by seventeen-year-old Ernestine Gourde of Medford. His arrest came as a great shock to his friends. Dr. Cahill on Massachusetts avenue, North Cambridge, and has enjoyed a comfortable practice.

Clews to Its Whereabouts and Clews to Other Hidden Gold and Treasure Revealed in This Story.

By "The Money Man."

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Walter Sinclair, a young business man from Cleveland, met Madame Alvarez, a beautiful and mysterious woman, in Boston. He found that she was trying to elude pursuers who were intent upon doing her an injury. They hired a red car and an expert chauffeur and went about the city. They found themselves pursued by three men and a woman in a green car.

The green car whizzed by and the woman in it shouted something in a tongue that Sinclair did not understand. Then Madame Alvarez took a jewelled box from a package and removed something from it. A rough looking man, creeping out of the darkness, approached her with a jewelled revolver. When the man saw who the woman was he fell on his knees and kissed the hem of her gown.

Madame Alvarez placed the package from which she had removed the box, and told him to keep it until she called for it. He answered that he was to retain it all his life and bury it buried with him. She said that in each box he contained what was worth more than half of Boston. The strange woman then left Sinclair to hide the jewelled box. She returned and found Sinclair and the chauffeur gone.

Sinclair and Madame Alvarez rode to a railroad station in the red automobile. As the car stopped the woman took a sealed envelope from her bosom and gave it to Sinclair. She said the contents would throw some light on the mystery in which he had become a figure. Just as the train started a woman in black and veil came running up, crying out: "Stop that woman—she is an escaped lunatic!"

The train sped away, and Sinclair found himself confronted by the trio of strangers. The suspect was introduced himself as Doctor Malthus, the head of a sanitarium. The others, he said, were his assistants, Dr. Benoit and Madame Perrett. Dr. Malthus said that Madame Alvarez was suffering from an incurable mental disease. Sinclair promised to dine with him that evening. When Sinclair went to his hotel he found that the package Madame Alvarez had asked him to guard so jealously had disappeared.

Dining with Malthus that evening, Sinclair saw that the latter was a hypnotist. Told Sinclair that if he came to dine with him that evening he would be given some information about the lost package. Sinclair looked for the name of the hospital previous in the directory. There were no such names.

CHAPTER XI.

WHEN the carriage from Dr. Malthus was announced some inkling which he could not explain impelled Sinclair to ask the driver to wait ten minutes. He had not yet had time to read the sealed envelope which Madame Alvarez had given him, so he deposited this with the bag of gold pieces and the greater part of his own money in the hotel safe. Then he hurried to a nearby store and purchased a revolver.

With this loaded and carefully stowed away in his pocket, he stepped into the carriage. It was a disreputable sort of cab, shabby both inside and out, drawn by a decrepit horse and driven by a rough looking fellow with a long black beard. Even to Sinclair's unsuspecting eye it bandied like a private carriage, and he mildly wondered what manner of man this Dr. Malthus could be to maintain such an outfit.

"Where does the doctor live?" he called through the window to the driver.

The driver replied, but the exact words were lost in the clatter of the rickety wheels, and Sinclair did not bother to inquire again.

"How soon will we be there?" he asked instead, thinking that to one who knew so little about Boston as he did the length of time involved in the trip was more important than the exact location of his destination.

"Twenty minutes," came the reply with a gruffness which seemed to indicate that further questions would not be welcome.

"Ah, well," mused Sinclair as he looked back to the hospital-like facade of the hotel, "I will cut this visit short and will be back in twenty minutes. I could go back here again to read carefully that important looking communication from Madame Alvarez. Then for a good night's sleep—that is, in case this clew really tends to the recovery of the packet. Otherwise I won't be able to sleep for a week."

For the first time since the loss of the packet he was not despondent. The message he had received over the telephone had been so positive that, in spite of the distrust of Dr. Malthus which that gentleman's furtive eye and the oily suavity of his manner had inspired, his hopes of success were high. Although he had not the faintest idea that he would have occasion to use the weapon, the pressure of the big new revolver against his hip gave him an added sense of security after the surprises of the previous night.

Baffled!

The cab jogged along slowly, and Sinclair leaned back with eyes closed pondering his chances of recovering the packet. Was Dr. Malthus really the head of an insane asylum? Was he in the green motor car which had pursued them and then passed apparently heedless of their existence? If he had been, how could he have helped recognizing Madame Alvarez, and if she were really an escaped maniac, why had he not stopped and taken her? Was the Madame Ferratti, who had been with the doctor's chauffeur that morning at the station, the same woman who had accosted him and to whom Madame Alvarez had referred as Rosa?

There was so much seemingly contradictory evidence on both sides of these questions that he was baffled. Think as he would he could not answer them in any way that was satisfactory.

It hurt his pride to believe that Madame Alvarez was insane, and he made up his mind not to believe that until he should have the most convincing proof. Yet he had to admit that insanity was the most sensible explanation of many of her actions.

Wearied with thoughts which only led to greater perplexity, Sinclair fell asleep. When he awoke the cab was standing still. He looked at his watch. It was already a half-hour since they had left the hotel, and apparently they were not yet at their destination. He called angrily to the driver. There was no answer.

He pulled open the door and looked out. The cabbie was not in sight.

The cab was standing in one of Boston's finest squares. Sinclair walked down half an hour or so. He passed beautiful fountains and flowers and under lofty trees. Sitting on a bench was the most ragged individual he had ever seen.

"I know it was hidden here," one said, "but what was that about $100—"

That was all Sinclair caught. Later he ran across another apparently excitedly over something. One of them remarked: "Well, I'll be—"

"Do you know the spot where Boston started?" "Well, I hear—"

"From the information I have I figure that it is not buried under anything and that you will not have to climb for it. All you have to do is to see it and then touch out and get it."

Another conversation was overheard: "What is that talk about the starting place of Boston?"

"It means the spot where the city started. There is such a place and it is marked. Around there some place—"

Sinclair passed on. He caught snatches of conversation here and there. This broke on his ears like a thunderclap:

"The very business spot in South Boston for a gold * * hunt."

The word "Washington" was mentioned by one man. Sinclair returned to the square.

As he paced up and down he pondered whether to wait longer or to take a car back to the hotel. He heard the chime of footsteps. It was the missing driver approaching, as if he had been running a long distance.

"What in the world do you mean by running away and leaving me in a wilderness like this? Why, I would have been at the doctor's ten minutes ago," said Sinclair angrily.

The driver made no explanation. With some show of respect he merely said: "I am sorry," but it could not be helped. We shall be in a few minutes now." Then he climbed into his seat and with a crack of the whip the cab was off again.

What was the meaning of all this delay? Where had the driver disappeared to and why? The more he thought of this singular occurrence the more apprehensive Sinclair grew and the more he wished he were safely back at the hotel.

Apprehensions!

For twelve minutes by Sinclair's watch the cab jogged slowly on through what appeared to be a very quiet residential section. Then it turned into a narrower and frequently the driver stopped his horse as if he were not entirely sure of his way.

At last the cab drew up in front of what Sinclair in the darkness took to be a vast and lofty mansion surrounded by a high hedge. The driver threw open the door.

"Take your bag," he said simply.

Some distance back from the street Sinclair could barely distinguish the outlines of a large, high-gabled house. Not a sign of light was to be seen. He opened a creaking gate and walked along a gravelled path between two rows of big elms to a door which opened from a broad avenue supported by pillars of colonial design.

He pulled the bell and waited. The cab had already gone. There was not a per son in sight, not a sound to be heard except the mournful moan of the wind in the trees. To all appearance the house was deserted.

Again he rang the bell impatiently. At last the rattle of chains, the noise of bolts drawn and the creak of a key turning in a rusty lock reached his expectant ears. The heavy door opened slowly upon an interior which was even darker than outside.

More clews in to-morrow's instalment of the great mystery story. If the reader gets or fails to get any of the treasure finders, be on the alert for to-morrow's American.

HOW TO GET YOUR FIRST CLEW TO THE HIDDEN TREASURE

GETTING the first Key Edition of the AMERICAN daily may mean a fortune to you, or some other substantial part of the $5,000 buried treasure.

An instalment of "Hidden—Not Lost," the story that contains the clews to the treasure, appears in all editions with a key in the upper right-hand corner.

The first of these editions is issued shortly after the noon hour. It will be on sale practically simultaneously very shortly after it is issued at the following places:

AMERICAN Offices, No. 80 Summer street.
North Station.
Haymarket Square.
Corner Boylston and Washington streets.
Park Street Subway Station.
Scollay Square.
Postoffice Square.

DON'T HARM PROPERTY IN SEARCHING. THIS IS UNNECESSARY TO DISCOVER THE TREASURE.

THOUSANDS IN SEARCH FOR HIDDEN GOLD

Eager Hunters Snap Up Key Editions of American and Trace Secreted Treasure.

With greatly increased fervor the search for the $5,000 treasure of the AMERICAN was continued yesterday. From the time the first Key Edition of the paper appeared in the street until late in the evening the hunt was kept up.

Many women took part in the search, and a great many more are in the contest to-day. Cleverness in solving the clews is by no means as important as shrewdness and quickness in following them, it was found. Some good things were overlooked by the hasty readers yesterday.

Follows Clew; Gets $5.

At the various distributing points of the AMERICAN crowds of people gathered and eagerly snapped up the first Key Edition. They ran through the instalment of the mystery story and then, for the most part, they made dashes for Boylston and Washington streets.

That was the most obvious clew. In a few minutes that section was the scene of a frantic crowd of hunters. Every available hiding place for treasure appeared to was searched. On the outside of the congested region was a young man who looked on the excitement with a cool head. He walked away from the crowd a short distance, glanced behind a prominent sign and discovered $5.

The successful searcher was Leo Times of No. 51 Pleasant street, Dorchester. He said to an AMERICAN reporter:

"I had been hunting at T wharf for the treasure hidden in some place in that section. When I read the clew that led to Boylston and Washington streets I went there. I kept out of the crowd and did my searching and hunting. The result was that I found the $5 hidden there."

Treasure in State House.

One of the clews in yesterday's instalment of the story mentioned the "highest point in Boston." Three young men who had been following the mystery story closely went to Beacon Hill. There they concluded that the State House was the highest one in the hill. Finally they figured that the cupola was the highest part of the State House.

They went up to the cupola, where Lieutenant Goodwin was standing, and there found $10. The young man who managed this quest was Aubrey M. Wilmot of No. 12 Rock Valley avenue, Everett.

"I do not know," said young Wilmot, "whether that is the highest point in Boston or not, but I looked so to me, and so we went there. It proved that we had figured out the clew correctly. We were among the first to sit on the State House."

When clews are not run down they are reported in the story until two or three are made so plain that they are easily solved.

TO SEARCH FOR $100,000,000 IN SOUTH SEAS

George M. Faulkner, of No. 185 Sumner street, and H. A. Harrington, also of Boston, have become leaders in an organized search which is soon to be made to find $100,000,000 in treasure buried by pirates on a lonely island in the South Pacific Ocean. The treasure is in gold, silver, pearls and diamonds, and is the plundered store of churches, temples and treasure houses of ancient Peru.

The searchers for the buried loot have filed articles of incorporation at the State House and the name of the South Sea Islands Trading Company, with a capital of $100,000, is chosen. An option has been obtained on the United Fruit Company's steamer Ethelwold, to be used by the expedition.

Captain James Brown of No. 208 Cabs street, Providence, will be captain of the expedition. He says he can take the ship right to the spot where the buried treasure lies, and the Boston capitalists who are backing him are convinced he can do it.

Captain Brown, when a lad of sixteen, sailed on a treasure hunt with Captain Henry Smith, Jr., of Salem, in search of the millions of dollars worth of loot which Captain Smith's father, commanding the Black Witch, had buried in 1820.

Captain Smith, Jr., and young Brown went in the schooner Sea Foam, and after two English schooners loaded with gold dust had been captured and their treasure buried with that already hidden, Captain Smith wrecked his vessel. His crew, all but Brown, died suddenly on the island. Captain Brown says it was from poison given them by Captain Smith, who with young Brown then sailed away in a long boat. They had about $1,000,000 aboard, says Captain Brown. They were bound for Australia.

Captain Smith, Jr., then tried to kill young Browne, who, in self-defence, he says, was compelled to kill the captain. Young Brown sailed on and buried his treasure near Dropdish Bay. Later, he says, he dug up a little of the treasure. In late years he had been a sheep and cattle raiser and a Cuban filibuster.

Included also among the backers in the new enterprise is W. M. Harrington of Providence.

A Cow in Your Kitchen—See What It Means

Rich milk or cream, rich and fresh, always on hand when you want it. No waiting for the milkman, no shortage, no waste. Better milk—cheaper milk—germless milk. That is what Van Camp's means to you.

You who still cling to the milkman—let us show you what you lose.

Try one can of Van Camp's—a ten-cent can. Then judge what it means to have such milk all of the time.

Try cooking with milk that has all the butter fat in it. Try drinking a milk that is sterilized.

See what you gain in convenience—see what you save in money. Then see what you get—the richest, purest milk in the world.

Can you think of a reason for using raw, germ-laden milk when you can get Van Camp's?

Make Your Milk Dishes With Whole Milk.

You don't get the whole milk when you buy from the milkman. The reason is this:

Milk that stands awhile separates. The butter fat rises and the solids fall. So you get all the butter fat only when served from the top of the can.

Thus you are surprised, when you first cook with Van Camp's, at the delicious flavor it gives to a milk dish. You wonder what we have added—what we have done—to make the milk seem so good.

We have added nothing at all. Van Camp's is simply the whole, rich milk, just as it comes from the cow. You get all of the butter fat, all of the solids. You never get them all in raw milk.

That flavor belongs to your cooking. You will get it every time in milk dishes made with Van Camp's.

We issue a Cook Book—free. It tells how to make all sorts of milk dishes, and gives the whole cost of each. Ask us to send it to you.

Nothing But Milk.

Van Camp's is simply rich, Holstein milk with two-thirds the water evaporated.

It is not like condensed milk, which is half sugar. You can't use condensed milk in cooking.

In Van Camp's, nothing whatever is added—no sugar, no starch, no preservative. And nothing is subtracted, save part of the water, which you can put back when you get it.

It is simply pure milk—nothing but milk—put up in a convenient and sterilized form.

Analysis shows about 30 per cent of solids, of which 8 per cent is butter fat.

It's Economical.

Van Camp's—with all of its goodness—is cheaper than milkman's milk.

It's as thick as thick cream. So thick that you add one part water for coffee. Yet it doesn't cost half what you pay your milkman for cream.

Add two parts water and you have rich milk. The cost of such milk, when you buy Van Camp's by the case, runs about six cents per quart.

Then you have no waste—no milk left over. That saving in a year is enormous.

And Van Camp's means a cow in your kitchen. Rich milk or cream always on tap. And always fresh—always the same.

Yet such milk, in such shape, costs you actually less than raw milk bought as you want it.

No Germs—No Danger.

But the great fact about Van Camp's is the fact that it's germless milk.

Our cows are inspected; so are the men who milk them. There are no tubercular cows, no diseased milkmen, to convey their infections to Van Camp's Milk.

Our dairies are sanitary. Our factories, where the milk is evaporated, are built without wood. We make a business of cleanliness.

Then the milk is sterilized after the cans are sealed. Not a germ of any kind can remain in it.

Please think what that means.

In Washington, D. C., it was recently found that 11 per cent of the dealers were selling tubercular milk. Seven per cent of the milk, taken from 400 samples, proved fatal to guinea pigs. The pigs died of tuberculosis.

That's but one of the risks you take in using raw milk. Any disease germ that gets into milk breeds millions more like it within a few hours.

A great deal of illness is known to be due to infections conveyed by milk. Can you think of a reason for taking such risks when you can get Van Camp's?

For Children.

When immigrant babies arrive in New York they are fed on Van Camp's Milk. Their food is prescribed by physicians—by men who know the dangers that lurk in raw milk.

Two-thirds the mortality of children is due simply to germs in milk.

Raw milk, like raw meat, is an unfit food. There is too much danger of germ infection.

Let your children drink Van Camp's. They will come to love the slight almond flavor, due to sterilization. For that flavor means that the milk is pure. Not a germ of any kind—harmless or harmful—exists in Van Camp's Milk.

Van Camp's Milk comes in 5 and 10-cent cans—at your grocer's. The first can will convince you. After that, get the discount allowed when you purchase by the case. Then you'll have it always on hand.

COURT SETS ASIDE 'BRIGHT EYES' VERDICT

Edward Vanderbilt Declared Insane, but Case Must Be Retried Twice.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 30.—On the slightest technicality, without going into the merits of the case, the Appellate Court to-day reversed the decision of the sheriff's jury and commission which declared Edward Ward Vanderbilt, the rich merchant who married Mrs. May Pepper, the widely known Spiritualistic medium, to be insane and incapable of managing his own property.

The decision was based on the fact that the plaintiff paid the jurors $1 a day that the case might be finished. The jury can only be compelled to sit a certain number of days, and for more time must be paid by the State at the rate of twenty-five cents a day. The plaintiff, Miss Minerva Vanderbilt, consented to pay the jury $1 a day each in order to have the case settled. The Appellate Division decided this made the trial illegal. The case will now go back for a new trial, and after that the Appellate Division will pass on the merits of the matter.

A Simple Test Which Any Reader of This Paper May Try

Do you know whether you are inclined to or have kidney trouble?

Have you ever tried the simple test of setting aside your urine in a bottle or vessel for twenty-four hours?

A sediment or settling in the urine indicates a diseased condition.

Science has to-day furnished proofs that all the purifying that your blood needs; in fact, all that can be done, must be done by your kidneys.

They are the most important organs, because they filter and purify the blood.

The kidneys strain or filter out the impurities in the blood—that is their work.

When your blood is impure, nothing can purify it but your kidneys.

To overcome these troubles take Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the world-famous kidney remedy. In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that has yet been discovered.

If you mention this paper and write Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle, they will send it free by mail—it will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys.

ST. LOUIS WOMAN WINS FEDERATION ELECTION

MRS. MOORE DEFEATS MAY ALDEN WARD IN SPIRITED CONTEST OF BALLOTS.

Mrs. Philip N. Moore of St. Louis was elected president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs to succeed Mrs. Sarah S. Platt Decker of Denver. The announcement was made at 10:45 o'clock by Mrs W. G. Chivis of Missouri, chairman of the Committee of Tellers.

Mrs. Moore's election was an overthrow of the slate reported yesterday by the Committee on Nominations. For St. Louis nation received 516 votes to the 390 cast for Mrs May Alden Ward of Boston

Mrs. Ward was not an avowed candidate for the position. Her designation by the nominating committee, indeed, was made in the face of her announcement a week ago that she was not to be considered as an aspirant for the presidency at this time, while the convention was being held in New England. Her partisans, therefore, feel no bitterness at the result of the vote.

Slate Otherwise Intact.

Aside from the president-elect, the list of officers chosen is the complete list reported and recommended by the nominating committee, as follows:

First vice-president, Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles, California.

Second vice-president, Mrs. Mary Belle King Sherman, Illinois.

Recording secretary, Mrs. Henry H. Dawson, New Jersey.

Corresponding secretary, Mrs. Frank N. Shick, Wyoming.

Treasurer, Mrs. George O. Welch, Minnesota.

Auditor, Mrs. Rudolph Blenkenburg, Pennsylvania.

Directors—Mrs. Guy R. C. Allen, Wheeling, West Virginia; Mrs. Phillip Carpenter, New York City; Mrs. Sara A. Evans, Portland, Oregon; Mrs. George R. Hancock, Utah; Mrs. William A. Johnston, Topeka, Kansas; Mrs. H. L. Keefe, Nebraska; Mrs. O. P. Kinney, Valparaiso, Indiana; Miss Louise R. Poppenheim, South Carolina.

There was no demonstration as the result of the Ward-Moore contest was announced. President Decker had asked that the convention be perfectly quiet until the reading of the entire list be concluded. When Mrs. Chivis was all through there was enthousiastic hand clapping for a few seconds.

Solid South for Mrs. Ward.

It came out in gossip that Mrs Ward, New Englander, had received the support of practically a "solid South" against a daughter of Missouri, Mrs. Moore, the president-elect. It is understood that the New England woman was placed to nomination yesterday by the nominating committee through the efforts of a Southerner. While Mrs. Ward got a large New England vote, the six New England delegations were more or less split on the important question of the day.

Immediately after the result of the election was announced Mrs. Ward rose from her chair on the platform, walked over to Mrs. Moore and congratulated her heartily on her victory. Mrs. Moore thanked Mrs. Ward, then left the convention hall and was driven to her hotel.

Mrs. Ward said later to a reporter:

"I am perfectly satisfied with the result of the election. I have not been an aspirant for the place at any time. I had withdrawn my name and had asked my friends not to work when the convention first met. The selection of my name by the Nominating Committee was a complete surprise to me. I was as unprepared for it as anyone was.

"I think the convention has chosen wisely. Mrs. Moore will make an admirable president. She has all the necessary qualifications and has my best wishes."

"I am, of course, gratified and delighted at the honor which has been conferred upon me," said Mrs. Philip N. Moore, who CAN reporter to-day shortly after her election as president of the Federation of Women's Clubs.

A Pleasant Surprise.

"My election, after the action of the nominating committee, was quite a surprise. It is a very unique thing in our organization to win an election on a nomination from the floor. The nominating committee selects the candidates, and their action is generally ratified by the organization.

"The action of the nominating committee in placing Mrs. Ward's name before the convention was a surprise, since I think it was generally understood that she was not a candidate for the honor. The opinion of the convention, as expressed in the election, seems to bear out this contention.

"I am sorry Mrs. Ward did not stand as a candidate for first vice-president, as we could then have the benefit of her experience as a member of the board. I am sure the members of the board will miss her very much, and I know that I personally am disappointed. I am, of course, pleased at the outcome of the election."

At the session of the convention invitations were received from several cities for the next biennial convention and the next council meeting. Atlantic City, San Francisco, Chicago, Hot Springs, Ark., and Cincinnati all bid for the next biennial. San Antonio, Tex., and Denver asked for the next council meeting. All invitations were referred to the Fall meeting of the Federation board.

BEGIN PROBE INTO SUBWAY LAND DEALS

Finance Commission Hear Evidence on Charges Against Transit Board.

Members of Back Bay families, among the most prominent of the city in business and social life, will be among the witnesses summoned before the Finance Commission to give testimony regarding the taking of land for the Washington street subway, if the probe which the investigating body began to-day of the subway real estate transactions in their opinion discloses poor business judgment and a lack of consideration for the city's best interests to warrant a public hearing.

The Finance Commission is shifting the evidence in executive session to-day, and numerous witnesses have been summoned. For the past week the individual members of the commission have been considering the matter, and the result of their search will be disclosed at the executive session.

All of the members of the special committee of the Common Council have been summonsed to the star chamber meeting. This committee, appointed on June 18, investigated the rumors that members of the families of the Transit Commission and prominent Back Bay residents had received valuations for their property which was taken by the right of eminent domain, far in excess of a fair value.

The members of the special committee of the Council are Charles F. Harding, E. Howard George, John I. Costello, Augustus L. McLennan and Edward C. Webster.

If an open hearing is deemed necessary, over a score of witnesses will be summoned. Because of the fact that his brother is one of the members of the Transit Commission, Phineas Commissioner Crocker is not serving with his associates in the investigation.

SUSPECT 'BLACK HAND' ORIGIN IN COLLEGE FIRE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

OLEAN, N. Y., June 30.—The main building of St. Bonaventure's college at Allegheny was destroyed by fire at 4:30 a. m. to-day. About $80,000 loss was suffered on the building and $20,000 on its contents, books and furniture. A strong belief exists that the fire may have been a "Black Hand" outrage, as about a month ago Father Joseph Butler received a "Black Hand" letter, threatening that the college building would be destroyed unless $10,000 was placed in a designated spot. No attention was paid to the letter.

HELEN GOULD DISAPPROVES OF WEDDING

PARIS, June 30.—Miss Helen Gould has come out in open disapproval of the marriage of her sister Anna and Prince De Sagan, although she joined the other co-heirs of the late Jay Gould in signing a formal deed of consent.

The consent of Miss Helen Gould was obtained only after a great deal of urging on the part of other members of the family. She bitterly opposes the marriage and has added the following protest over her own signature to the deed:

"While I have signed this legal document in order not to deprive my sister of a part of her fortune, I feel it due to myself to say here that I deeply regret the contemplated marriage. "HELEN GOULD."

THE DOCTOR says "drink beer" to the weak and the convalescent. To those who need strength—need a food and a tonic. If it is good for them, isn't it good for you?

The virtue of beer does not lie in the alcohol. There is only 3½ per cent. of that.

It lies in the malted barley—a digested food. And in the hops—a tonic and an aid to sleep.

It lies, too, in the fact that the drinking of beer flushes the system of waste. So would water, of course, if one drank enough of it. But you don't drink water like beer.

When beer is pure there is nothing more healthful. And Schlitz beer is pure. It brings no after-effects, no biliousness.

But better go without beer than to drink the wrong beer. That is why the Doctor generally says "Drink Schlitz."

Ask for the Brewery Bottling.
Common beer is sometimes substituted for Schlitz.
To avoid being imposed upon, see that the cork or crown is branded Schlitz.

'MRS. TEMPLE'S TELEGRAM' BREAKS LIARS' RECORDS

SCREAMING FARCE AT BOSTON; ARTIST GOLDSMITH AT KEITH'S; OTHER THEATRE NEWS.

One of the largest audiences that the Boston Theatre has ever held last evening saw the initial performance in this city of "Mrs. Temple's Telegram." The piece is the work of Frank Wyatt and William Morris and is one of the liveliest, most unique and most amusing farces ever seen here.

There's nothing heavy in the plot. Man takes a ride on a Ferris wheel and the wheel gets stuck in mid-air. Lady he doesn't know occupies same car with him. Car remains "stuck" all night. Man afraid his wife won't believe the real story. So the man falsifies. One falsehood doesn't fill the bond, so he falsifies some more. Several friends help him. The contrast between these friends and the principal himself for the "shortest and highest" medal would put an Ananias and Munchausen to shame.

George Parker as Jack Temple, the Ferris wheel victim and the cause of all the trouble, is most amusing. Wilson Mellone does some of his best work of the season as Frank Fuller, the friend who feels it incumbent upon him to help out with the falsifying. Eleanor Gordon as Mrs. Jack Temple couldn't be better. Harry Edwards as Captain Sharpe and Mary Sanders as Dorothy are an amusing pair of young lovers. Walter Walker as Wigson and Rose Morison as Martha do clever character work. William Hasson does excellent work as John Brown.

Goldsmith Scores Success.

Wallace Goldsmith, the famous local sporting cartoonist, made his debut in vaudeville at Keith's last night. He was in the house of friends and he scored a decided hit.

The clever cartoonist drew striking caricatures of national characters, including William Jennings Bryan, Fairbanks and the "cowhide," "Uncle Joe" Cannon and "Bill Taft." Then he rapidly sketched old "Cy Young."

The rest of the bill at Keith's this week is an unusually strong one. Ralph Herz was a feature and was compelled to answer several encores. Two ludicrous sketches are on the bill, "A Dream of Baby Dodo," presented by Catherine Hayes and Sabel Johnson, and "The Band Box," in which Clara Blandick, Marianna Thurber and Richard Sterling did excellent work.

Other features of the bill were Karl Barjeben's string quartet, another act of Boston origin, Sadie Jaussell, who impersonates the Alice Lloyd, Eddie Foy, Anna Held, Eva Tanguay and others; Les Freres Rios, acrobats; Evans, Emilia and Evans, Jewish comedy; The Burkes and James B. Watson.

House at Tremont.

Hot vaths ,yte no tee with the audiences that crowd the Tremont these Summer evenings for the manifold comic and other divertissements of "A Knight for a Day." Maybe it's the reputation of the theatre for a lowered temperature that helps attendance, or maybe it's because "A Knight for a Day" is the rarest of all the Summer shows, but it draws and keeps on drawing. The crowd is receiving Joseph Comedian John Slavin irresistibly comic in all that he did as a Jonathon Joy, the little waiter who throws up his job and starts out to do the Don Quixote act. Miss May Vokes, as Tilly Tuttle, the "perverse lady," who meets Jonathan and finds in him an old flame, scored every one of her wonted laughs in her screaming role. It's a long time since this pair of star comics have been matched in musical comedy and both of them, with the surroundings of the musical gaiety, would be enough to draw crowded houses right through a regular season.

Personalities in comic opera like that of William Carleton are quite uncommon, even in these advanced days. Miss Carolyn Lilja, too, the prima donna of the organization, presents a rarely sweet combination of vocal accomplishments and charming presence. Her rendering of "The Garden of Dreams" is a delightful moment among the sentimental bits of the piece, and "Life as Bes Saw," too, sung by Miss Lilja and Mr. Carleton, offers particularly pleasing pictorial and lyric quality.

Palace Theatre.

"Riley's Speech" and "Chinese Servants" are the titles of the two burlesques presented by the stock company of the Palace Theatre this week. They are two of the funniest skits ever given at Manager Waldron's house. Frank Pinney, Harry Buckley, John J. Black and Milton Schuster are most happily cast and create no end of fun. The burlesques abound in funny situations, and the musical numbers and specialties introduced are all excellent. Those who won especial favor were Idylia Vyner, Lilly Cohen, Minnie Reinhart, Billy Waters and Pearl Black. The big numbers presented the girls in most attractive costumes, and several dancing numbers were well executed. There are two shows a day, and smoking is permitted.

Austin & Stone's Museum.

Crowded houses were the rule yesterday at Austin & Stone's Museum and a dozen audiences found pleasant and refreshing entertainment. In the main hall there were a score of attractions, headed by Sandow and Lambert in feats of strength. Glenfield, the ventriloquist; Olivetta, the clever illusionist, and Feeney's Boys' Band Symphony Orchestra. In a program of splendid music, were among the other headline features in the big mid-Summer show bill. The theatre shows were excellent, introducing a variety of features. The Manhattan Girls were there with a bright attraction in the form of a series of exclusive song and dance numbers and a clever ensemble feature. Cassie French, Marion Allen, Della Ames, Nina Leeds, Violette Dale and Dorothy Norton were seen in specialties and a grand marching finale.

Grand Opera at Paragon.

Florya's Grand Opera Company, headed by Mme. Frery and the Belgian Grand Opera Band of forty musicians, which last week delighted patrons of the Majestic Theatre, yesterday moved to Nantasket Beach, and became one of the many free attractions of Paragon Park. There are also, as free attractions at Paragon, Lincoln Beecher and his airship in daily flights; Bonetti and his balloon with the parachute drop; the Maitland Military Band of thirty pieces, with H. F. Blaney, "The Man Who Sings to Beat the Band;" Mamie Lowande, acknowledged greatest lady rider; Bonetti Brothers in a second head trapeze act; the "Whirling Maze for Life," from the top of the tower; Frank Holden's Orchestra, with Johnny Maguire and Frances Blaney singing in the Palm Garden; the new Cooper Slide, the Sand Bumps and the peerless electric illumination. The management is spending $10,000 each week for free features.

Star Theatre.

Everybody who visited the Star Theatre yesterday enjoyed the show immensely. A cool breeze was forced into the auditorium by large fans, the air passing over and around freezing pipes, giving pure and cool air at all times. "Nocturnal Thieves" and "The Fat Baby" were very funny pictures. "Our Dog Friends" gave a fine description of the New York police dogs at work. "Lovers' Ill Luck" and "The Story the Boots Told" caused lots of fun, while "The Patriot" was a thrilling story in the horrors of war.

Bijou Theatre.

Among the most striking features at the Bijou Dream this week is a splendid picture of the Harvard-Yale boat race at New Haven, showing the contest at the most exciting points. With this are some splendid comedy features, more of the popular grand opera selections, the crowned singer of Irish songs and a short lecture on Holland which is beautifully illustrated.

Hub Theatre.

This is the fifth and last week of Master Auriesma's engagement at the Hub Theatre, and nobody should miss seeing the specialty in which he appears. The other headliners, Miss May White, Blanche Farquette, and Ben Loring, are more than making good in a new schedule of songs, travelogue, and new schedule of Miles Bros.' comedy and dramatic pictures, complete an ideal program for Summer wealth er.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

Love and war are combined in "A Rough Rider's Romance," the play which is being admirably produced by the Bowdoin Square Theatre Stock Company the present week. There is enough war to furnish thrilling climaxes and keep the audience deeply interested, while the romantic love story of the dashing young American lieutenant who falls in love with a beautiful Cuban girl, and whose courtship is beset with complexities, is borne out to a happy climax.

Miss Hunt and Harold Claremont and Anita Mores and Lieutenant Ford, respectively, appeared to advantage in a line of black admirably suited to their abilities. Mr. Stevens as Raymon Valquez and Mr. Walter as Jose Mendoza were prominent.

Lexington Park.

Lexington Park is now the Summer mecca for thousands who delight in a day's outing or an enjoyable trolley trip. The Zoo, with its wild animals, foreign birds, etc., is always interesting. The large picnic grounds, the athletic field, the dancing pavilion and Miss Edna F. Simmons's ladies orchestra, playing every afternoon and evening, are enough to attract anybody in search of entertainment. There is a beautiful rustic theatre where delightful shows are given afternoon and evening. Matt Ott and twenty-four funmakers in the company are on the bill for this week. The show this week, afternoon and every day, is entitled, "Helen from Troy, New York." It is a musical comedy where fun and mirth are dispensed every minute.

Norumbega Park.

Norumbega Park has had the biggest month during June that ever for a number of years. Canoeing seems to be more popular this year than ever before, and the beautiful open air theatre is playing to a full house every evening, with a large attendance at the matinees. The zoological parades are always interesting, and there may be seen standing outside the bear pits, at feeding time, hundreds of excited people. The bill for this week, which opened yesterday, is a high-class vaudeville show, the best which can be booked. The handsome canoeing ballalleys, the magnificent restaurant, under new management, the merry-go-rounds, picture machines, and plenty of entertainment.

Scenic Theatre.

With a perfect system of ventilation, the fragrance of flowering plants emanating the cool atmosphere, an excellent entertainment, comfortable seats and pleasant ance, the Scenic Temple at the corner of Berkeley street and Warren avenue is a delightful amusement resort during the Summer. This week the bill is one of exceptional merit. The moving pictures are absolutely new, the illustrated songs are new and exciting, and the specialties are highly instructive and amusing. The full orchestra contributes some very delightful gems incidental to the performance. On account of the warm weather the performance is given from 2:30 to 10:30 with an extra matinee on Thursday. The official record is climbed to 81 by 9 a. m.

This was the record in the United States Weather Bureau on top of the Federal Building. At 9 a. m. the Thompson's Spa thermometer, which furnishes temperature for thousands of pedestrians, said that the temperature was only 80 degrees, or one degree lower than the official mark.

The difference of one degree is not so unusual as the fact that the official record, taken on top of the postoffice and up in the moving air currents, was higher than the one registered down near the sidewalk, where the heat is usually felt.

Clemens (Mark Twain), Hamilton Mabie, Richard Watson Gilder, Colonel Thomas Wentworth Higginson and Robert Bridges.

PLEADS FOR HUSBAND SHE HAD ARRESTED

John O'Brien of No. 244 Gold street South Boston, was arrested on complaint of his wife, Mary, who charged him with neglecting to support herself and their nine children. After he was arrested she relented, and pleaded with Probation Officer Parker for leniency for her husband. O'Brien said he had a job, and would do better for his family. The officer suggested in court to-day that O'Brien be given another chance, and after berating the prisoner Judge Fallon placed him on probation.

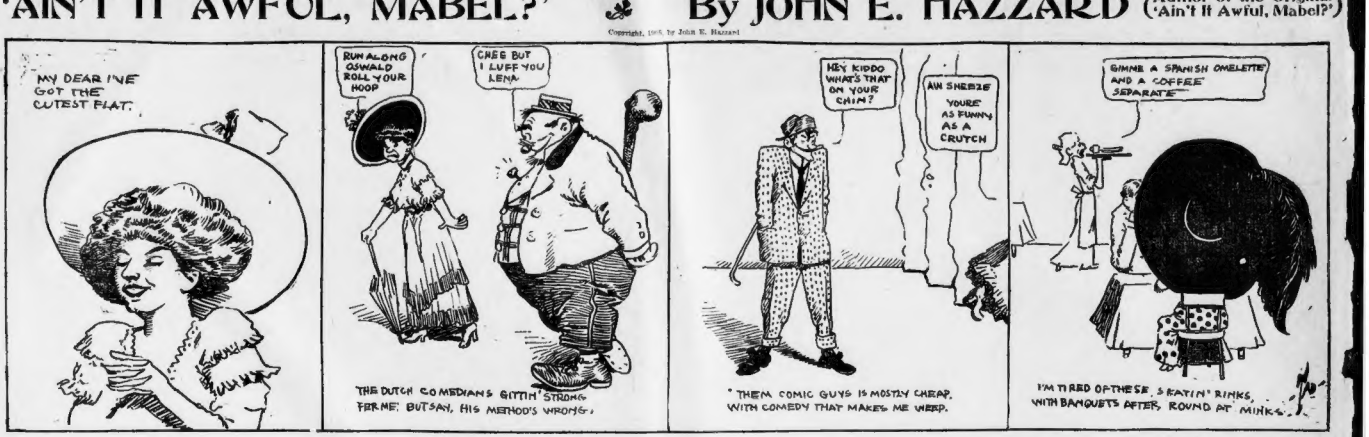
'AIN'T IT AWFUL, MABEL?' — By JOHN E. HAZZARD (Author of the Original 'Ain't It Awful, Mabel?')

Copyright, 1908, by John E. Hazzard



My dear, I've got the cutest flat,
With a pianola an' a cat;
At last, a place to hang my hat!
Ain't it awful, Mabel?

But, kid, the rooms are all so small
That if two people come to call
I'll have to see them in the hall.
Ain't it awful, Mabel?

The neighborhood is real refined,
With no rough-house of any kind;
So you jest make yourself resigned.
Ain't it awful, Mabel?

The Dutch comedian's gittin' strong
Fer me; but say, his method's wrong
An' I jest told him "Skid along!"
Ain't it awful, Mabel?

Them comic guys is mostly cheap,
With comedy that makes me weep.
I'd rather take a good long sleep!
Ain't it awful, Mabel?

I'm tired of these skatin' rinks,
With banquets after, 'round at Mink's,
An' only bottled beer for drinks.
Ain't it awful, Mabel?

Husbands I Have Met

Sidelights on Matrimony by a Sympathetic Spinster

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

NO. 1.—THE MARRIED MALE FLIRT.

MRS. JONES is a pretty good hus band on the whole. He was the bane of the little Western town where he met and wooed pretty Mary Hayes.

All the girls were crazy over him, and therein lies the source of the greatest trial of Mrs. Jones's life, for the girls' admiration turned Mr. Jones's head.

They taught him to consider himself irresistible, and though he is now fifty, rather fat and decidedly bald, he still looks on himself as a Lothario.

"I know Joe is pure gold at heart and that he loves me," Mrs. Jones confided to a friend; "but it does look so silly to see him trying to flirt with every good-looking girl and woman he meets. It makes me ashamed to go out with him, and, besides that, I don't think it shows proper respect to me."

"Don't you think you are just a wee bit jealous?" answered the friend, who being a lone spinster lady, had no husband to worry over.

"Jealous? Of course I am," snapped Mrs. Jones, "if you had a husband, would you enjoy seeing him make a fool of himself?"

Merely Makes Eyes

"No," murmured the spinster lady, "I don't suppose I would, especially if it were over other women; but Joe does not really flirt; he merely makes eyes."

"That is just what makes him look so foolish," was the answer. "If we get into a street car and a pretty girl sits opposite us, Joe stares her out of countenance. He fixes his tie, pulls his cuffs out, puts his hat at a rakish angle and altogether acts like a perfect idiot."

"Sometimes the girls look at him as though they would say, 'You silly old man, aren't you ashamed of yourself?'"

"Well, Mollie," said the spinster lady reflectively, "perhaps I may."

"Yes, I might," admitted Mrs. Jones. "Joe might drink, or he might seriously make love to other women, or he might gamble. All those trials would be infinitely greater than the one I have to put up with; but sometimes the little trials are the ones hardest to bear.

"His foolishness on the car's part has absolutely destroyed my pleasure in going out with him. I have spoken to him time and again about it, but I can't make him see it in my light.

"What do you say to him?" asked the spinster lady, curiously.

"I tell him that he is not showing me proper respect, and that he ought to be ashamed of himself. I also tell him that all girls have a thorough contempt for men of the ogling type; that they simply look on him as a silly, middle-aged man who ought to know better. If he so feels a bit of a man of his age to imagine that a young girl can be flattered or aroused to any interest by attentions from him!"

"Will Get Over It"

"He will get over it in time," said the spinster lady.

"Oh, yes, of course he will; but in the meantime his undignified behavior makes him appear as a foolish old master, even at heart he really is a good man. There are hundreds of men, but like him, and I suppose all their wives hate it just as I do," said Mrs. Jones, with a sigh.

"Well," said the spinster lady, "I must be getting back to my Arcadian Eden. Bye-bye, dear; cheer up. Joe is a pretty good husband after all."

"Yes," said his wife, "he is, and I love him dearly. You have met a good many husbands, Edith, and don't you think that, all in all, mine is one of the best?"

"Yes, my dear, I do, and though I am merely an onlooker at the marriage game, I could fill a book with my observations on husbands."

"Why don't you?" said Mrs. Jones, eagerly.

"Perhaps I may," said the spinster lady.

Bobbie's Slate—By William F. Kirk

Ma Is Getting Strenuous. She Went Shopping, and She Is Going Again

This is Ma setting on a chair. She is tired—very tired.

THE pleter on my slait to-day is Ma setting on a chair. She is tired. She has jest rain from shopping. I'm bent in the pleter, he is in the other room, laffing. He is laffing becawse Ma sed she wud never go shopping agenn. I always make Pa laff when Ma says she will never go shopping agenn.

Wen Pa began to laff, Ma got awful mad. Thats rite, you prute, sneer! sed Ma. I wasent sneering, Pa sed. Also, sed Pa, I am anything but a brute. I am a fine piece of silk, sed Pa, the greatest bargain you ever got in all yure shopping.

I will you know. Now tired I am, sed Ma, but you will never know & you will never understand. First of all, sed Ma, I was in almost every department of Dubingarsh's trying to buy you sum shirts & collars.

How many times have I told you, sed Pa, that I can buy my own shirts & collars, also that I wud rather pick them out myself, also my neckties, Pa sed.

Butiful Color Skeem in Shirts

I dident expeck you to show any gratitude, sed Ma. But I bought you two (2) lovly shirts, the cresom I got them. Ma sed, was beokaus they had such a butiful color skeem. One of them was red with green stripes & the other was green with red stripes. They are cumming all the way from Indianapolis & I am sure you will like them.

Well, sed Pa, I am glad to hear that I am going to get sum new shirts, but I am sorry to hear that they are coming all the way from there. I calm home and left them there.

Why, sed Ma, what do you mean?

I left them there, sed Pa, because I am going to have a new shirt made to my own measure. I am going to have it made by a man who knows how to make shirts, a man who has had experience in making shirts for men who have to wear shirts, a man who knows that a shirt is not complete unless it has buttons on it, a man who knows that a shirt is not complete unless it has buttonholes in it, a man who knows that a shirt is not complete unless it has sleeves in it, a man who knows that a shirt is not complete unless it has a collar on it, a man who knows that a shirt is not complete unless it has a bosom in it, a man who knows that a shirt is not complete unless it has cuffs on it, a man who knows that a shirt is not complete unless it has a back in it, a man who knows that a shirt is not complete unless it has a front in it, a man who knows that a shirt is not complete unless it has tails in it, a man who knows that a shirt is not complete unless it has a yoke in it, a man who knows that a shirt is not complete unless it has a neck in it, a man who knows that a shirt is not complete unless it has a pocket in it, a man who knows that a shirt is not complete unless it has a tail in it, a man who knows that a shirt is not complete unless it has a shirt in it, a man who knows that a shirt is not complete unless it has a shirt in it, a man who knows that a shirt is not complete unless it has a shirt

STEEL MEN DENOUNCED FOR CITY CONTRACTS

STINGING ARRAIGNMENT OF METHODS OF BIDDING MADE IN POLICE COURT.

Stinging was the denunciation of the methods of the four prominent Boston steel men when final arguments were made in their cases to-day before Judge Bolster in a special session of the police court to John D. McLaughlin, prosecuting officer for the government. He declared that the men stood guilty of entering into a conspiracy to defraud the city of Boston by means of collusive bids and asked for their punishment.

After hearing Samuel J. Elder, counsel for the steel men, declare that his clients were not guilty and should be discharged, Judge Bolster notified the four men to appear before him on Thursday morning at 9.30 o'clock and hear his decision on their cases.

The men being prosecuted are Alfred E. Cox, treasurer, clerk and director of the Atlantic Works, East Boston, and former member of the Governor's Council; Duncan B. Russell, treasurer of the James Russell Boiler Works; John B. Keough of the Hodge Boiler Works and Charles H. Koopman of the Cunningham Iron Works.

Combined to Check Competition.

John D. McLaughlin, of the city's law department, the prosecuting officer in the case, said in his argument:

"The city wanted competition in order to get the lowest bid. If there was no competition, the city wanted to establish it. Instead of competition we find these men met and devised a plan—and was it to the lowest bidder and the others were to be paid for making higher bids. Competition was thus avoided.

"Cox's own testimony before the Finance Commission was to the effect that he was entirely familiar with the practice. He knew of it, though he knew nothing of these bids. When his superintendent showed him the check from the Russell company, Cox deposited it to the credit of the Atlantic Works. By doing this Cox became a member of this combination, just as guilty as Russell or any one of the other defendants.

"These four men (Cox, Lynch, Russell and Koopman) gave the Schoolhouse Commissioners to understand that they were all bidding, all seeking the work."

Elder Interrupts.

Mr. Elder, for the defendants, here asked of Mr. McLaughlin: "Suppose Mr. Russell had been rejected? Don't you suppose the next lowest bidder would put through the work?"

Mr. McLaughlin said: "The scheme might have been upset, but it was a scheme just the same."

Samuel J. Elder, counsel for the men on trial, said: "There was no collusion. Those four men did not form a club or association for the purpose of establishing monopoly. The case falls short. There is no case against Cox. He knew nothing of the bids. This is merely an example of popular clamor run riot.

The arrest and prosecution of the steel men came as a direct result of the testimony given before the Finance Commission last Winter. The work on which it is alleged the city was defrauded was the construction of the Fort Point Channel bridge and construction work for certain Boston schools.

Seven steel men were arrested. George B. Dalland of the Eastern Expanded Metal Company; David S. Andrews, president of the Boston Bridge Works, and Charles N. Fitts, secretary of the New England Structural Works, the three other men arrested, yesterday waived examination and bearing in the Police Court, preferring trial in the Superior Court. They are held in bonds of $2,000 each, which was immediately furnished.

ATTORNEY ISAACS TO WED TO-NIGHT

Much interest is being shown in the marriage to-night of Jack Isaacs, one of the most promising of the young lawyers, and Miss Juliet Sumner, well known among the younger social set. The ceremony is to be a quiet home affair at the residence of the bride's parents, No. 83 Westland avenue, Back Bay. Rabbi Eichler will officiate. Assistant District Attorney Isaacs, brother of the groom, will be best man. Following a honeymoon in the South, the couple will reside in Dorchester.

BEEF HIGHER THAN EVER AND GOING HIGHER

Cattle Receipts at Stock Yards Give Lie to Meat Trust Arguments.

That beef prices are going higher, despite the fact that they are already the highest on record in the United States, was the unanimous if not reassuring opinion expressed to the BOSTON AMERICAN reporters to-day by retail dealers in the market place and in residential districts.

The Beef Trust says the gradual and constant increase is due to "decreased receipts of cattle at Chicago and the "high price of corn." Retailers say they "don't know" for the same week last year.

As to "decreased shipments" the facts are at hand.

How Receipts "Decrease."

The receipts of live stock in Chicago for the week last reported amounted to 333,180 head, an increase of 60,878. Deliveries of cattle were 8,611 in excess of the receipts for the previous week and 11,372 greater than for the same week last year.

As for the high price of corn," said one old marksman to-day, "that kind of talk is nonsense. When the price of corn goes sky-high, you can bet all you've got that the farmer isn't feeding it to stock that is reaped for the Chicago stock yards. Your farmer is no fool. When corn is extremely high Mr. Agriculturist is sending it to the grain market for the high dollar. No, the price of beef is high because the Beef Trust needs the money. The retailer has as little to say about it as the consumer."

Trust Crowds Out Jobber.

A good deal of uneasiness exists among local dealers over the report from New York that agents of the Trust have taken the hotel and steamship supply business away from the middleman. The Trust is now handling this business direct.

SEARCH NEW YORK FOR DOCTOR'S POISONER

POLICE SAY SLAYER WHO SENT PHYSICIAN DRUGGED ALE WILL SOON BE ARRESTED.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Detectives from Philadelphia reached New York to-day in a hunt for the murderer of Dr. William H. Wilson, a wealthy physician, who died in his home at No. 819 North Seventh street in the Quaker City after drinking ale from a bottle since discovered to contain cyanide of potassium. The bottle of ale, it has been learned, was sent to Dr. Wilson from New York and there are now two clews to the identity of the sender.

Detective Frank Paul of the Philadelphia coroner's office reached New York at the head of a number of sleuths and immediately went to the district attorney's office to confer with the county detectives. He is working on two clews, and expects to make an arrest in New York within the next twenty-four hours.

The police of Philadelphia learned today that Dr. Wilson had a large practice chiefly among wealthy women and they believe that the murderer is the husband of one of his patients.

The police are of the opinion that vengeance was the motive behind the crime, the murderer believing that Dr. Wilson had either insulted or harmed the slayer's wife.

Dr. Wilson's career in Philadelphia has been something of a mystery, and the police believe that the clearing up of this mystery may lead to the capture of the murderer. Dr. Wilson was very wealthy, owned the house on North Seventh street and also the fine country place at Cornwells. He had also recently purchased an expensive automobile and a motor boat. Detective Paul when he reached New York immediately went to the District Attorney's office. It is said that he will ask for the services of several detectives to hunt down the two clews he has to the identity and motive for the murder.

Dr. Wilson was originally a New Yorker. He went to Philadelphia fourteen years ago and developed a large practice. Many of his patients are wealthy men. He was a graduate from a New York school of medicine.

BIRTH OF TWINS DEATH OF LOVE

CLEVELAND, June 30.—When twins arrived to the Hollingsworth household love flitted away, declares Mrs. Hollingsworth in her petition for divorce filed in Common Pleas Court. The arrival of the twin babies proved too much for her husband, she asserts.

"What! Twin" he is said to have exclaimed as the nurse told the sad tidings. The wife says that from that time on her husband neglected her. She also says that her mother-in-law helped keep Hollingsworth from being reconciled to the twins.

PHELAN TALKS ON POLITICS

Sixty young men of Roxbury, the members of the Young Democracy of Ward 17, have formed a club to be known as the Shirley Associates. The club has been formed for social purposes, as all the members are greatly interested in this subject.

Headquarters has been established at the corner of Hampden and Albany streets and Thomas Leo has been elected president. It is planned to hold a number of public meetings during the Summer and Fall, and the first of these will be in the form of an outing on Independence Day and next Sunday.

The members and their friends will assemble at the bridge on Shirley, Weir River, Nantasket, where the club has secured a cottage for the remainder of the Summer. One of the features of the outing on the holiday will be an address by Thomas F. Phelan of Roxbury on "The Principles of the Independence League."

The committee in charge of the outing is composed of Thomas Leo, president; Dennis Buckley, James McLaughlin, George Hilan, James Connolly, Edward Devin and George Crehan.

TO EXTRADITE BANKER WALKER

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The Department of State is advised from Mexico City that on Saturday the Supreme Court of that country held for extradition William F. Walker, the New Britain, Conn., banker who absconded almost a year ago and was captured in a mining camp while in disguise. Extradition proceedings in Walker's case have been pending for a long time. He was held for extradition by the local judge at Ensenada, but his counsel initiated proceedings in Amparon, which took the case to the Supreme Court. Walker is held at Ensenada and will be brought to the United States, probably going direct to El Paso.

SAXONIA SAILS, 200 IN SALOON

The Cunard liner Saxonia sailed for Liverpool to-day with the largest number of cabin passengers she has taken out of this port this season. Among the 200 in the saloon were Major G. F. Gwynne and daughter of London, who have been the guests of A. Shuman; General Francis Peabody, Jr., and Mrs. Peabody, Mrs. Mary E. Curley, treasurer of the Gaelic School, and Miss D. J. O'Brien. The two last named go to Ireland to study Irish conditions and the Celtic language. There were 225 second cabin and 400 steerage passengers aboard. Major Gwynne is sheriff of Exeter, England, and a member of the Honourable Artillery Company of London, the parent organization from which the Boston Ancients sprung.

TROLLEY LEAPS TRACK 15 HURT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Four men and a woman were badly cut and bruised to-day when a Bed avenue car of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, bound to from Coney Island, jumped a switch at Marion street and crashed into a trolley pole.

The forward trucks of the car left the rails, and the passengers were flung from their seats to the floor. The trolley pole was bent almost double, and the whole front of the car was badly wrecked. The injured were taken by a surgeon from the Bushwick Hospital, and all were able to go to their homes.

WHOLE WORLD OF SPORTS COVERED FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN BY ITS CORPS OF EXPERTS

M'ALEER HAS HAD GOOD LUCK WITH THE BROWNS

Hats off to Jimmy McAleer! How effectually he has silenced the people who have been asserting and reasserting that the Browns would never play ball until they had an up-to-date manager! What a game, hustling team he has built up on the ruins of so many failures! Hats off to the man who, with a makeshift team of castoffs, has been and never-greens, to-day is at the head of the American League.

Of the old St. Louis team, vacillating between sixth and eighth place, Bobby Wallace is practically the only survivor, and he is playing as great ball to-day as when he was setting the world on fire at third for Cleveland a dozen years ago. McAleer has stood by little Bobby through thick and thin.

O'Connor, though doing no catching now, is still on the team, and he is McAleer's man Friday in everything. A wonderful baseball general is Rowdy Jack, and a wonderful help to the Browns' manager he has been in coaching the pitching staff. McAleer knows, as everybody should know, that no team is really great without at least one great catcher in its ranks.

Powell—rated by many last year as a has been, too big and too clumsy to go the fast pace that obtains in the American League, is to-day one of the very best pitchers in the country. McAleer has never lost faith in the big boilermaker with whom he was associated here in the '90s. Dineen, who was supposed to have outlived his usefulness and whose departure from Boston caused no regrets, has not lost a game for the Browns this year. McAleer had batted against Bill many a time and knew what Dineen could do.

Charley Jones, held in but slight esteem at Washington, has been playing almost as good a game in centre for the Browns as McAleer himself used to play for Cleveland in the old days. Jimmy can tell a great pitcher from a mediocre performer without the aid of spectacles.

Ferris—to whom Boston fans said a gleeful farewell—is playing a game at third almost equal to that of Bradley, Collins, Tannehill and Coughlin. McAleer has always admired Hobe.

Tom Jones, on whom every club in the League would probably have grantedwaivers two months ago, is now rated along with Chase, Donohue, Stovall and the other great first basemen of the land. McAleer kept faith in Tom when the hammers were the noisiest.

Stephens and Spencer—unheard of until McAleer found them—constitute to-day about as good a pair of backstops as any team could wish.

Danny Hoffman and Jimmy Williams, of little use to Clark Griffith, have been and are playing pennant ball for the Browns. As Yankees they had helped beat the Browns too many times to escape Mc-Aleer's attention.

What is the answer? Simply that McAleer has at last got together a team that will do his bidding; a team that plays to win instead of for a high place in the individual records; a team that hustles all the time and that hustles hardest of all when it is a run or two behind.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

The Phillies rather got the jump on the Dukes and had too much head.

If Hi Yong could field a little faster he would be more valuable to himself and his team. Twice he was too late in getting the ball to a base.

Hi almost broke Sparks' shoulder when he put the ball on the Phillies' pitcher, as he was running to first on a bunt.

An old salt, several seas to windward, sat down front and got mixed on his coaching, but made a lot of foolish noise. It's a rare sight to see a home run coming one after the other over the opposite fences, and is a treat to see the home team do it.

Joe Kelley is a good all-round player, but he was not entirely at home on the infield jack after such a long absence from the position.

Browne took all the plums in the outfielding stunts when he saved nine by coming to the diamond on short flies and holding the runners at third twice in succession.

Claude Ritchey did a little act in the first inning which might be forgotten when he fastened to Titus's hard one, though he slipped down and then checked to Dahlen, forcing a runner at second, while he was sprawled on the ground.

Seven hits were made off Bonites in two and a half innings. It was not Walter's day.

Think of it! Kitty Brandsfield getting three bingles five times up. The old warhorse still has a kick with the stick.

Ritchey was the best hitter for the Dukes, getting three out of four.

Young made the fans howl when he knocked out the single which scored the first run for the Dukes.

Bat Nelson as He Will Look When He Meets Gans

JOE GANS TOP HEAVY FAVORITE OVER DANE

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—Battling Nelson, who beyond doubt has trained conscientiously for his Fourth of July fight, has given out that he will do no more boxing in his quarters after to-day. Nelson is really in fine fettle, and many of his admirers believe that he will wipe out all his mediocre showings of the year past and cover himself with genuine glory when he meets Joe Gans on the national holiday. The Battler has hammered away in his usual whole-souled style and now he is something like a pound and a quarter above the scale.

Joe Gans has not taken kindly to the restrictions invoked by the fact that he has slighted boxing exercises this trip. Joe says that when he has a man like Nelson for an opponent it is ridiculous for anyone to try to say that he needs to school himself in judging distances. To some of his friends he has advanced a reason for dropping boxing from his schedule. He has had a deal of gymnasium work within the past couple of months and that he thought it would be a nice thing to put in as much time as possible in the open air. He added that by favoring road work he ran less risk of injuring his hands than if he sparred daily with his partners.

Wheeler Gans's system of training suits the camp visitors or not the fact remains that the Baltimore man is a top-heavy favorite in the betting. The price against Nelson to-day was nominally 2 to 1 and there was no short end money in sight. It looks as though all the heavy wagers are Gans men.

WALCOTT CLUNG IN EVERY ROUND

SCHENECTADY, June 30.—Joe Walcott failed to show his oldtime form in his bout with Bill Hurley of Glens Falls. Walcott earned the displeasure of the crowd by clinging through every round.

BENEFIT FOR SCHAEFER.

CHICAGO, June 30.—Jake Schaefer, billiard champion of years and now all but hopelessly ill in his home on the North Side, is to have a benefit on July 14, the affair taking the place of a baseball day at the South Side Park.

LEWIS HAD DONOVAN NEAR OUT

BANGOR, Me., June 30.—About 1,000 people attended the Harry Lewis-Jim Donovan six-round bout at the Auditorium. The exhibition was one of the finest ever held in the Pine Tree State, and although Lewis lived up to his reputation, Donovan gave him one of the hardest fights of his career.

Lewis had his whole box of tricks working in fine shape and he landed his famous loop the loop punch often and to good effect. Lewis's left jab also did Donovan considerable damage and the New Yorker was groggy several times.

In the first round Lewis knocked Donovan to the floor with a right hook to the jaw, and it looked as if Donovan was all in. The gong saved him. From the first to the fifth Lewis forced matters, landing almost at will, with the exception of the third, when Donovan landed several stinging lefts to the face, he had all the best of it.

In the sixth round they came to the centre and began to mix it up viciously. After about a minute of fighting Lewis hooked a left to the jaw that followed this with a right and left to the stomach. Donovan went to the floor, but got up immediately. When he regained his feet Lewis started at him again, whipping across left and rights in rapid succession. Donovan went down again and took the count of nine.

Lewis kept pegging away with his left jab, and when the gong sounded for the end of the bout the New Yorker was again on the verge of a knock out.

In the semi-final Tommy Rawson of Boston had the better of Tommy Bergen of Lawrence. Rawson used a left jab most of the time and endeavored enough points to win had a decision been allowed.

"SLUGGER" MASON TO COACH.

LEWISTON, June 30.—Frank "Slugger" Mason of Dorchester, a Harvard graduate, has been secured as assistant to Prof. Purinton as coach of the Bates football team next Fall.

Over One Hundred Horses Remain in $50,000 Race

Of the 127 horses nominated in the initial payment in the American trotting Derby of $50,000, to be decided at Readville during the coming Grand Circuit meeting in August, no less than 109 have been kept good in the second payment that came last Monday. This is much more than was generally estimated by good judges, who thought were eighty to have been paid up it meant a large field of starters at the top of the bell.

Looking through the list of 2:10 trotters that are eligible to date is seen the best representatives of any race ever had in the world, and this not counting the wholesale bo entered with records slower than 2:10, that are just as liable to cop the big money under the handicap system as the ones named, as follows:

Sweet Marie	2:02	Daniel	2:08¼
George G.	2:05¾	Margaret G.	2:08¾
Sonoma Girl	2:05¾	Beatrice Bellini	2:08¾
Dr. Strong	2:05¾	Sterling McKinney	2:09¼
Highball	2:06	Alexander	2:09¼
Wilkes Heart	2:06¼	Jim Ferry	2:09¼
W. J. Lewis	2:06¼	Solon Grattan	2:09¼
Lillian R.	2:06¾	Betty Brook	2:09¾
Rosalma	2:06¾	Del Coronado	2:09¾
Nubby	2:07¼	Binetress	2:09¾
Stanley	2:07¼	Good Boy	2:09¾
Mack Mac	2:07¾	Sarah Abbell	2:09¾
Cleo	2:08¼	Blender	2:10
Clara Labon	2:08¼

The list of entries, while representative, in a certain sense, inasmuch as it contains large groups of horses of different rates of speed, from the highest down, is not so geographically. The support that the race received in the West was very slight—far less than it deserved and reflecting little credit upon the Western trotting contingent.

Out of the 109 entrants only twelve represent the territory west of Indiana. Two of these are Chicago—John R. Thompson's grand old war horse Solon Grattan (2:09¾), and Captain Hunt's fast young unmarked stallion Captain Hunt, by Arion (2:07¾).

The fastest record horse from the West is the noted gelding Watson (2:07½), owned by George C. Loomis of Minneapolis, Minn. W. G. Durfle of Los Angeles, Cal., names Directum (2:07), Petigru (2:10½) and Zamalto Queen, no record. M. W. Savage of Minneapolis names Janey Directum (2:25¾), George H. Estabrook of Denver names Lady Seymour, no record; Henry Ford, Brownwood, Tex., names Oily Gammon, no record; A. L. Thomas, Reno, Neb., names Stately Princess, no record; P. W. Hodges, Pleasanton, Cal., names The Angelus and San Francisco, no records.

Where are all the rest of the westernersWith fast records are content as confirmed "phenoms"? Echo answers, Where? Evidently their people either lacked the "great confidence" or the wherewithal—or perhaps both. And then to the average western or middle Westerner Boston seems about as remote as Rio de Janeiro.

QUILL MEETS ERNE AT ARMORY A. A. RING TO-NIGHT

Can a rugged, tearing m style of boxer defeat a clever artist who has a sting to his punch? That's the problem which will be settled at the Armory A. A. to-night when Tommy Quill meets Young Erne of Philadelphia in a twelve-round bout. The last time they met Erne managed to stave off Quill's bull-like rushes and score enough to get an even break and he has got a lot of courage to try it over again.

The Quaker has groomed himself for this affair, as he wants to get a decision over Quill which will leave no doubt but that he is his master, and his manager, Jack McGuigan, feels the same way.

Both boys have had the chance to size up each other's style and will not have to waste any time going out to show their mode of warfare from the first gong.

Erne is figuring from his last contest with Quill that he can whip the Brockton lad. He says that he was not in the best of physical shape when he faced Quill before, but for this match has worked with great care.

There is no question but that Quill underestimated Erne when they met recently and did not train as hard as he might. Even some of the friends of the Brockton lad do not agree with his training methods, for Quill does most of his training at night. Then again, they agree that Quill has a lot of amateurs handling him in his corner, and this fact almost cost him the victory when he met Erne.

The show will open promptly at 8:15 p. m. with Johnny Collins of Roxbury facing Billy Griffin of South Boston for six rounds; followed by Young McDonald and Eddie Carr in a bout that is scheduled for eight rounds.

Then before the main bout comes the decision of the colored championship, when those formidable opponents, Young Jack Johnson and Dick Slater, meet in a six round contest.

COLUMBIA FIGHT RETURNS.

Manager Harry N. Farren has acceded to the wishes of the sporting fans of Boston to give the returns of the Gans-Nelson fight in full from the stage of the Columbia Theatre on July 4. He will open the doors of his playhouse long before the fight starts, which will be 6 o'clock Boston time. Tickets will be on sale all Saturday afternoon.

The cable reports of last week announc- ing that a new 24,000-ton battleship will be laid down in England and that it will be driven by internal combustion engines have aroused a lot of talk among automo- bile engineers, who are always striving to find a new fuel. Although nothing definite is known of the English plans, it seems probable that the suction gas producer will be used. The instrument utilizes the suc- tion stroke of the gas engine to produce a gas from coke, which is then burned with boils water. The resulting steam is passed into the cylinders where it mixes with the coal carbon. The suction of the engin- also draws the gases into the cylinder, which cleans the gases and ab- sorbs them. This scrubber consists of a series of falling water trickles through coke

It is asserted that this process is very efficient, using only one-half pound of coal per horsepower per hour, as against one and three-quarters pounds of coal at pres- ent used in the best steam engine plants. The experiment promises to gain a great favor among stationary engine men where space is not a problem. Many engineers are working on a system on this principle for use in the compact enough for automobile use.

Meanwhile if the big English battleship is successful the plan its result will be watched with interest. Motorists will be interested in the experiment, as it is evident that the era of gasolene is pass- ing and something must soon be found to take its place.

HUNTING FOR HIDDEN GOLD

Perhaps It's Not the Most Serious Work in the World, but HOW MANY OF US ARE DOING ANYTHING MORE IMPORTANT?

You may have noticed in some public square or suburban outing place a crowd of men, women and boys, examining chinks in the masonry, lifting up bricks from the ground, peering under piles of sewer pipe or climbing to perilous heights on walls or monuments. Don't be alarmed. They are not insane. They are looking for money, or for certificates that will give them possession of a building lot, a motorcycle, a gold watch or a piano.

They are reading a story of buried treasure entitled "Hidden—Not Lost" and they are running down some of the clews concealed in that piece of literature.

We are sure the public will be glad to know that some of these people are FINDING what they are looking for.

The increasing number taking part in this daily hunt indicates that the search is proving worth their while.

In a time when many are out of work such a hunt as this saves some people from the necessity of appealing to charity. To others it furnishes an interesting diversion.

It does no one harm. It sharpens the wits and tests the energy of all who engage in it. The most alert and skilful reap rewards in money.

Who shall say that these hunters for hidden gold are not spending their time with as serious a purpose as though they were packing a primary, jumping over a pole or attending an international conference on the whyness of the what?

Old Men Go Back; Wages Are Restored

Here Is an Example That Other Railroads Might Follow

Colonel Edward L. Russell, vice-president of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad, announces that the old wage schedule in effect May last, and which was reduced because of the panic of last Summer and Fall, will be restored. Moreover, trainmen, section hands, telegraph operators, conductors, freight handlers and the like, suspended when times got bad, are to be reinstated.

This action augurs returning confidence and returning commercial activity. The Mobile & Ohio Railroad runs from St. Louis to the Gulf, with a number of branch lines, penetrating coal fields, cotton plantations and lumber regions. In Summer there aren't any of the products of the farm to haul, the period of transporting cotton and corn beginning about September 1.

But, from Mr. Russell's statement, business has so improved with his company that he is justified in re-employing his old men and in paying all the same salaries they received when the country was enjoying an era of prosperity.

All over this land crops are good. The fields of the West cry for harvesters. In the Northwest timber cutters are whetting their saws and axes for raids upon the forests. In the manufacturing centres metals and coal are being piled up for immediate consumption. Still, we have heard of none of the railroads except the Mobile & Ohio admitting that prosperity is coming back or has come back to us.

Mr. Russell's railroad, constructed in 1848, has a record of never having killed a passenger, although it has carried millions. And now it is making another piece of history that other roads, we imagine, are entitled by the times to emulate.

Why Shoot Balloonists?

Charles A. Glidden's wrathful prosecution of the two men who shot at his balloon with rifles indicates the need of a new law in Vermont.

So far from forbidding the shooting of balloons the Green Mountain State has wholly neglected even to provide a close season for them, so that the sharp-shooting descendants of the revolutionists have no rule for their guidance when the new game comes into sight.

In these days of high flights the three-mile limit might be urged by potters of balloons at long range, the actual crime being committed out of the jurisdiction of any nation on earth.

As balloonists are about as harmless and inoffensive a set of sportsmen as have ever indulged in a pastime, we would suggest that every State enact proper laws for their protection, so that hereafter their ancient enemy, Gravitation, will be the only one they have to fear when they go voyaging skyward.

The Holiday Trade

(A Song for Before the Fourth.)

By James J. Montague

THERE'S a queer little man in a queer little shop,
Who is driving a queer little trade,
And the place is filled up from the floor to the top
With the little white boxes he's made;
And the click of his hammer sounds all the day long
Through the empty and echoing street;
And this is the sort of a queer little song
That he sings to its rhythmical beat:

"IN many a silent and close curtained room
These little white boxes will be,
But what do I care for the dolorous gloom
That always brings business to me?
I send them to avenue, byway and slum,
Along with my little white bill;
And for every blank silence that falls where they come
My hammer grows busier still!

"SO what of the laughter that rings out no more,
And what of the little shrill voices
That never may mingle again with the roar
On the day that the nation rejoices?
I merrily work in my queer little shop,
For boxes are yet to be made;
And my hammer keeps clicking with never a stop,
I'm at work for my holiday trade!"

Marriage as a Scienc...

Why Should Not Girls Prepare for It With as Great Care as Any Other Career?

By ELLA WHEELER WILC...

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

WHEN a young woman decides upon making music a profession, she studies the science thoroughly; she begins at the beginning, and conquers the preliminaries; she drills herself in scales and five-finger exercises, and she perseveres with thoroughness and harmony.

When she hears other musicians play, she listens with critical ear, in order to avoid their mistakes and to emulate their desirable methods.

Why should not each young woman, expecting to be a wife and mother some day (as every normal, sensible young woman does), give as serious attention to the science of a successful marriage?

Why should she not study her mother, to begin with, and see wherein the mother has succeeded, or failed, in making an ideal home for husband and children?

Then, with this foundation for an understanding of some of the complications of domestic life, why should she not proceed to study her friends who are married; to analyze the causes which lead to marital felicity or infelicity?

Gain Valuable Idea

An observing young woman could provide herself with an immense amount of valuable ideas by the time she reached a really marriageable age, if she set about this work seriously. In her mental note book she could jot down many general rules which would help her in time to come.

Men vary in their ideals of what constitutes a good wife; men vary in their tastes and temperaments; but there are certain qualities, habits and peculiarities of women on which all men agree.

For instance, every man likes to know that his wife is an orderly woman; that she possesses neatness and system. He may surround her with caretakers and maids and helpers, and lift from her shoulders every obligation to use these qualities, but he is better pleased with her if she includes them in her repertoire of virtues.

Order and system do not mean simply an orderly house. To be orderly means being on time for trains and boats, theatres and dinners.

It means knowing where things are; and it means saving a man nervous irritation by delays when time is precious.

Economical, Too

Then the orderly woman is almost invariably economical and able to make a better appearance on one-third of the income than does her disorderly and extravagant sister of wealth.

However prosperous a man may be, this quality in a wife is pleasing to him.

No man lives who is not secretly annoyed by seeing a woman finish her dressing on the street, or in a conveyance. The orderly woman finds time to put on her gloves her veil before she leaves the hou...
